Improving the standards of sports

1170. SHRI SANJAY RAUT: Will the Minister of YOUTH AFFAIRS AND SPORTS be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that there is constant decline in the standard of sports in the country;

(b) if so, the reasons therefore;

(c) whether Union Government are formulating any new sports policy for improving the standard of our country's sports facilities at various level; and

(d) if so, by when it would be incorporated?

THE MINISTER OF YOUTH AFFAIRS AND SPORTS (SHRI MANI SHANKAR AIYAR): (a) and (b) No, Sir. While it is a fact that there is considerable room for improvement in the standards of sports in the country, the performance of Indian sportspersons since the Commonwealth Games, 2002 indicates that the standard of sports & Games has improved in the last few years due to the combined efforts made by National Sports Federations, State Governments, the Sports Authority of India and the Government of India. India won a record haul of 69 medals (as against 25 in the last games) in the 2002 Commonwealth Games and secured fourth position. The tempo was sustained in the Bussan Asian Games in which India secured 36 medals. In the Melbourne Commonwealth Games 2006,

India performed well by winning 50 medals consisting of 22 gold, 17 silver and 11 bronze and retained its fourth position despite limitation of events/disciplines of India's strength. Indian sportspersons have performed creditably in a number of international competitions including the First Afro-Asian Games in Hyderabad and SAF Games in Islamabad in 2004. In Athens Olympics 2004, India won a first ever silver medal in an individual events since independence while some of the sportspersons gave their best performances. In Paralympics Games 2004 at Athens, India won 1 gold medal in athletics and 1 bronze medal in power-lifting.

(c) and (d) The existing National Sports Policy was formulated in 2001. This is being reviewed in the context of the 11th Plan, and the evolving needs and priorities in the sports sector.
